Streets, Alleys Uptown Littered With Waste Paper

I HOPE NO STRANGERS were in Harrisburg Tuesday afternoon specifically to give our city an inspection. In fact I hope there were no casual inspections by out-of-town people. But what I hope is that all of our local citizenry got a good look.

I'm referring to the vast amount of waste paper blowing around the streets and alleys, and piling in corners and other places.

The blowing paper was unsightly; the piled stuff a definite fire hazard.

DON WILLIAMS, Harrisburg's representative on the executive board of the Saline Valley Development association which is working to get industry into the Saline-Gallatin area, and I took a little walking trip along some of the uptown streets and back into a number of alleys yesterday afternoon.

You just wonder how it all got there—paper, I mean.

Paper was blowing all over the streets. It was coming from alleys as well as from other sources. Here and there in the alley was a pile of boxes and paper that had not yet been leveled by the wind. Just give it time.

Right now when we should be polishing up things as much as possible, we're throwing reams of paper right in the faces of whoever decides to come into our town. And New Year's Eve is over for nearly a year.

I talked with Sneed Jordan, commissioner of streets and alleys. He told me that in the early hours, before most people are up and out, all the uptown streets are cleaned well on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays and one morning a week his men go through the uptown alleys picking up what waste they can see. He said that he has to pay overtime for this work and this much cleaning is all his budget can stand.

Really, that much cleaning by the city should be enough. The workers can have the streets clean by 7 a. m. and by 9:30 a. m. they can look awful. It's like mama trying to keep the house clean with the kids constantly littering it up. By the time she gets one room swept all the rest are littered again.

This is a matter that must be solved from the source. A survey by me revealed that a few people persist in sweeping paper out the front or back door along with the dirt. They're in the majority. Some pile their paper outside for a truck to pick up and it gets to blowing before the truck gets there. In other cases the paper is picked up, thrown into an open truck and lots of it blows out as the driver moves merrily along to the dump heap.

This is a small thing that can easily be licked. But if it isn't maybe we need a nice six-inch snow that will keep the debris covered for a few weeks. That's what you call a snow job, you know.

Council Discusses Naming Judges For Special City Primary Tuesday

Gram Urges Appointment of Pension Fund Board

The Harrisburg city council Tuesday afternoon discussed next Tuesday's special city primary at which two candidates for city commissioner will be nominated, and heard Tom Gram, city policeman, urge the appointment of members to the police and firemen's pension fund board.

Regarding the election, at which Lee Morse, John H. L. Parish and Orval Hudnell are seeking the two nominations for the March 11 general election, the question of judges was discussed.

A new state law provides that all poll officials are now judges instead of being classified as judges and clerks and the council agreed that when available, the same persons who served in the city election three years ago will serve as judges this year.

Polling places:
Ward 1, Harrisburg city hall; Ward 2, Humm Motor Co.; Ward 3, Cummins building; Ward 4, Franks building; Ward 5, Leo Richmond's.

He is living at 313 North Jackson street, Harrisburg.

France Asked to Probe Reports Albania Holding U.S. Plane, Pilot

PARIS (AP)—The United States formally asked France today to investigate reports that Communist Albania is holding a missing U. S. Air Force plane and its pilot.

A U. S. Embassy spokesman said the French government agreed. France is the only major Western power with diplomatic representation in Albania.

An Albanian radio broadcast, monitored by a station in Munich, Germany, Tuesday, announced that a U. S. Air Force T-33 jet trainer piloted by a Maj. Howard Curran had invaded Albanian air space and been forced down.

The Air Force said Curran, 39, of Tacoma, Wash., had been listed garage; Ward 6, Soward's Harley Davidson Sales; Ward 7, Highway garage, Dorrisville; Ward 8, City Hall Gaskins City.

Pension Board Situation

Patrolman Gram said he was speaking first for the city and then for the policemen and firemen in regard to the setting up of the pension board.

"It's not treating Harrisburg right in not having the system set up," he declared.

At the last meeting Mayor Claud Gibbons turned in the resignations of Jess Hunsaker and James Ford from this board, saying the resignations had been handed to him in September.

City Attorney George B. Lee referred to a letter received here which said if the appointments are not made, the matter will go into court with mandamus proceedings filed to force the appointments of the members.

Mayor Gibbons, whose appointments of the pension board members does not require confirmation of the board and whose appointment of the board of police commissioners must be confirmed, declared he had two names ready to submit to the pension board but at 11:30 a. m., just an hour and a half before meeting time, the men had called and said they did not want to serve. The matter of appointments to the merit board has remained static for months.

Amend Taxicab Ordinance

"I am ready to make more contacts," he said, regarding pension board appointments. "You can't force a man to serve."

Given final passage Tuesday was an amendment to the taxicab ordinance. It provides that cabs may use stands on city streets at a rate of $5 per month per parking space used, the fee payable in advance.

Placed on file was the report of Justice of the Peace O. L. Woods, accompanied by a check for $798.40, which was the city's share of fines collected by him in December.

Lane said Ravin was traveling west, the other car east. Ravin's car left the road, ran over an embankment but missed some big trees and did not overturn.

Ravin stayed overnight in Lightner hospital and was released. His companion, named Mitchell, was not hurt. Both are drug salesmen.

SIU Payroll Over $800,000 Monthly

CARBONDALE, Ill. — Southern Illinois University's staff payroll has climbed over $800,000 per month, almost four times its size five years ago.

The University now lists 1,633 full time employees and 1,682 part-time workers, more than 90 per cent of whom are students. In 1953, when the monthly payroll was estimated at $240,000 per month, there were 725 full time and 600 part time employees on the SIU rolls.

Figures for November showed $710,268 paid to full-time staff members and $95,891 to part-time workers.

Baptist Hour Association Elects Officers

The Baptist Hour Association held its annual election of officers for 1958 at a meeting held at the Harrisburg First Baptist church at 10 a. m. on Jan. 3. Baptist churches from seven counties are heard on the religious hour over WEBQ from 7 to 8 a. m. daily. It is the oldest daily broadcast in America.

Officers were elected as follows: Rev. Ernest Ammon was re-elected president and associate announcer; Mrs. J. A. Musgrave was re-elected announcer and treasurer; Rev. Ed. Hatfield was elected vice chairman; Rev. Joe Morman was elected secretary. The above officers, along with Rev. Clifford Russell and Rev. James Franks, form the executive committee that carries on the work during the times the association is not meeting.

Rev. Roy Reynolds had served as vice chairman for five years; Rev. P. L. Waters had served on the executive committee for one year, and Rev. Clayton Humphrey has served on the executive committee for six years.

The president extended his sincere appreciation to these retiring officers. The annual noon meal for the sponsors and their wives was voted for the first of April.

Urged to Reconsider

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, Army missile chief, told Senate investigators today his decision to retire "is final."

His decision was announced by Chairman Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee after a lengthy session at which Gavin was urged to reconsider.

Gavin sat in on a news conference that followed the meeting. High Army officers, Gavin told the subcommittee, are placed in "an untenable position" by being required "to try to defend budgets we don't believe in"—budgets that are too low.

Johnson quoted Gavin as making this comment on President Eisenhower's request Tuesday for

Samuel J. Scott Gets U. S. Post

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A former FBI agent from the Tri-State has been named commissioner of the transportation and public utilities service of the General Services Administration.

GSA Administrator Franklin G. Floete Tuesday announced the appointment of Samuel J. Scott, native of Golconda, Ill., to head the agency which represents the government in rates cases before state and federal regulatory bodies.

Scott, a graduate of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, also will serve as consultant to other federal agencies in traffic and utility matters. Since last July, he has been a member of GSA's board of review.

The new commissioner entered federal service in 1942 as an FBI agent, serving for five years before returning to private life to practice law as a member of the law firm of Holmes and Scott in Metropolis, Ill. He returned to government service in 1951 as political attaché to the American embassy in Karachi, Pakistan, where he was stationed three years.

After two years' service as a staff officer in the super hush-hush Central Intelligence Agency, Scott joined GSA as a regional co-ordinator in the Chicago office, then came to Washington as a special assistant to the agency's general counsel.

Two Carrier Mills Youths Admit Herod Burglary

Two Carrier Mills youths, Jerry Pyle and Clarence Fitzgerald, were taken to Golconda yesterday by Pope County Sheriff James Gilliam after they admitted taking part in a Herod burglary, Sheriff William T. Barrett said today.

Barrett said the two admitted entering the store during the holidays with George Goolsby, one of two local boys held at New Albany, Miss. Barrett reported Goolsby saw the proprietors hide $120 and that the three admitted breaking in the place, taking the money and dividing it.

Goolsby and Calvin Miller, also held in Mississippi, have admitted eleven area burglaries.

Pleads Guilty to Slaying Marine

SALEM, Ill. (AP)—Robert Baker, 27, Wormleysburg, Pa., today pleaded guilty to a charge of murdering a hitch-hiking Indiana Marine.

Baker, who stood mute last March 27 when arraigned in court, changed his plea to guilty before Judge Daniel Dailey in Marion County Circuit Court.

Dailey deferred sentencing until after he hears additional evidence from the prosecution and defense on Monday.

Dailey also continued the murder trial of Baker's wife, Trudy Jo, 18, to Jan. 16. The Bakers were originally scheduled to go on trial together Monday in the robbery-slaying of Larry M. Kirk, 21, Winslow, Ind.

Last week, defense attorneys withdrew requests for a sanity hearing for Baker and a separate trial for Trudy Jo.

Leaders Meet With McElroy At the Pentagon

Eisenhower's First Request Is Generally Endorsed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic congressional leaders told Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy today they will support whatever military spending is "essential and adequate" to keep America ahead in race for space.

Their pledge was made at a breakfast meeting at the Pentagon arranged by McElroy.

It came a day after President Eisenhower sent his first defense spending request to the newly convened Congress—a call for $1,260,000,000 in supplemental appropriations for the current fiscal year to expand missile production and improve operations of the Strategic Air Command.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson told newsmen after the Pentagon meeting that he assured McElroy that if the defense secretary would "determine what is essential and adequate" in military spending and "stick with it, the Democrats would support him."

The administration is expected to ask Congress for 40 billion dollars in defense funds for the new fiscal year starting July 1. That is two billion dollars higher than the amount appropriated for the current fiscal year.

Eisenhower's first military spending request of Congress won general endorsement.

Johnson said that "50,000 air planes produced a year before Pearl Harbor saved our necks . . . a thousand missiles produced in the coming year may save our lives."

From presidential science adviser Dr. James R. Killian came a warning possibly setting the tone for Eisenhower's State of the Union message tomorrow. Killian said the United States is strong today—but Russia could surpass it in a few years unless the nation's scientific efforts are stepped up considerably.

Chairman George H. Mahon (D-Tex.) predicted a bill on Eisenhower's extra defense request would be ready in 10 days as his House military appropriations subcommittee called Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy to testify on it.

Mahon termed the request the first installment of the "new program resulting from Sputnik." No requests were made last year for any of the space age projects, he said.

They include:
—683 million dollars for development and production of ballistic missiles.

—329 million dollars for detection and interception of enemy ballistic missiles.

—219 million dollars for dispersing Strategic Air Command bases. The funds also provide for the start of construction of three submarines to fire the Navy's solid propellant 1,500-mile Polaris intermediate range ballistic missile.

In four stars—a full generalship—to stay on, and Gavin said he would carefully consider Brucker's plea.

Members of the subcommittee had expressed hope Gavin would change his mind. Gavin, who has been demanding a big increase in funds for the Army, was called before the subcommittee in its continuing investigation of the U. S. lag in missile and space satellite development.

In a previous appearance before the group, Gavin called for a shakeup in the present Joint Chiefs of Staff system to provide a more unified command in the Pentagon. But he has denied any connection between his advocacy of this change and his decision to retire.

Odds Against Adlai

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT
When the Eisenhower administration invited Adlai Stevenson to consult on plans for the Paris NATO meeting, it naturally wasn't much concerned over the effect this might have on the political fortunes of the two-time Democratic presidential nominee.

But Washington observers say now that Stevenson's three weeks in the diplomatic showcase stirred fresh interest in him as a 1960 prospect.

Up until this moment it has been largely a foregone conclusion that Stevenson's day as a presidential candidate was over. He himself has said a number of times that he would not try again. His goal is reported to be the secretaryship of state in a Democratic regime.

A fairly recent poll of 1956 Democratic convention delegates by Charles Cleveland, Chicago Daily News political editor, disclosed that four-fifths of the 1955 did not favor another Stevenson nomination.

Since his brief tour of duty in the capital, however, there are several reports of an upturn in Stevenson sentiment among these delegates and other political figures.

The only Democrat in history aside from Franklin D. Roosevelt to gain three presidential nominations was William Jennings Bryan. His bids were not consecutive, coming in 1896, 1900 and 1908. And he lost in all three tries.

In politics almost anything is possible, so one dare not say that Stevenson might not try again in 1960 and win after two failures. Many do not forget that he twice polled more votes than any losing presidential candidate in history.

But neither can it be forgotten that in many important quarters there was a great deal of respect for Stevenson in 1956, and that many leading Democrats felt his campaigning that fall left much to be desired. Add to this the natural urge of politicians to seek new faces to captivate the voters.

All in all, Stevenson's new political lease on life counts as an interesting phenomenon. But the developments thus far suggest he is still no more than an outside possibility for 1960.

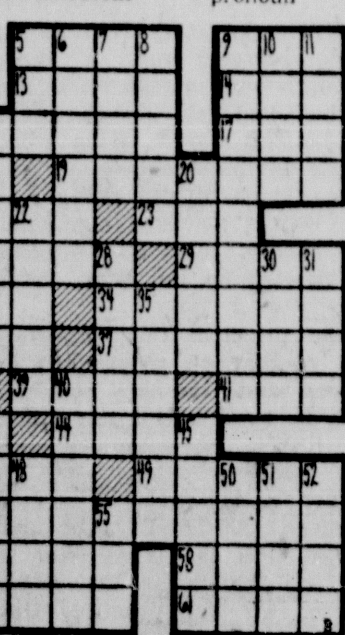

Average life of a one-dollar bill is approximately 10 months.

Hardly Back and Look at That Homework

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON SAYS:
Hagerly Was Right But Wrong Regarding Gaither Report; Nixon Wants Mayor Of San Francisco To Retire From Senate Race; Rus Submarines Are Our Greatest Danger.

WASHINGTON. — Jim Hagerly's soothing-synops statement that the Gaither report showed the United States was in no danger "at this time" was technically correct, yet highly misleading.

This column has seen the Gaither report and can state that it contains a very revealing chart giving the parallel military strengths of the USA and USSR.

The chart shows that after World War II, American military strength dropped, then caught up and surpassed Russia's during the Korean war.

But here is the danger which worried the experts who prepared the Gaither report—most of them Republicans—but which apparently does not worry Mr. Hagerly: During the Eisenhower administration, the chart shows American military strength dropping from its previous strong position to a parallel position with Russia as of today.

Thus Hagerly was technically correct when he used the words "at this time." However, the chart shows that at the present rate of American and Russian production, American military strength drops rapidly below Russia's from now on.

The Russian military curve goes up. The American curve goes down. Within a year, the United States will be dangerously behind Russia.

And since it takes two years or more for new bombers, new submarines, and new missiles to get into production, it will take at least two years to reverse and remedy the American military down-curve—despite the complacency of Mr. Hagerly. This is assuming, of course, that Russia stands still.

Note—It will be during the next two years, when Russia has a military advantage, that the United States will face a grave danger of preventive war.

WASHINGTON PIPE LINE

The Food and Drug Administration has warned that glass fragments may be contained in one- and three-ounce bottles of Gebhardt's Eagle-Brand chili powder. Since the glass is capable of causing internal injuries, housewives are urged either to destroy any bottles in their possession or return them to their grocers.

Congratulations to Ambassador William Lacey for finally working out a comprehensive plan with Russia for people-to-people friendship. Our only basic safeguard for peace is building up American goodwill with the Russian people, who for the most part are just as anxious for peace as the American people. Vice President Nixon has brought powerful political pressure on San Francisco's Mayor George Christopher to bow out of the California Senate race. Christopher is expected to yield.

Secretary Benson's further cut of price supports on milk and dairy products has cost him some of his few remaining friends in Congress, including one of his warmest supporters—Senator Aiken of Vermont. The new session of Congress is likely to overrule Benson and restore the supports or dairy products to 82-1-2 percent. The Senate Rackets committee is preparing sensational charges that the underworld has been muscling into the labor movement for ten years. The committee will attempt to link the recent gangland conference at Appalachin, New York, with certain segments of labor.

CAPITAL NEWS CAPSULES

Nickel and Brothers—Congressman Jack Brooks of Texas has put his brother on the government payroll as staff director of the Government Operations subcommittee investigating the intricate problem of a big government nickel contract to Freeport Sulphur in Cuba. Mr. Brooks is a good congressman, has saved the taxpayers a lot of money. But some people are wondering what his brother, Edward C. Brooks, can know about nickel, when for the past three years he was music and drama critic for the New Orleans Times-Picayune. His brother is drawing $12,500 a year. . . . Congressmen are probing to see what John Hay Whitney, ex-chairman of Freeport Sulphur, now American ambassador to Great Britain, may have had to do with the very lush contract given by the Eisenhower administration to Freeport Sulphur. Mr. Whitney was one of Ike's biggest campaign contributors, got his ambassadorial reward last year.

America's Greatest Danger — Central Intelligence regards Russian submarines as a much greater danger than the long range ICBM. Russia now has 600 submarines, far more modern subs than ours. She has subs which can slip up to our coast and fire missiles 750 miles inland without even coming to the surface. We would have no idea they were present. . . . The Russians are now testing a missile which can be fired 1200 to 1800 miles, also from under water. Our big Air Force base at Tripoli, North Africa, biggest outside the United States, could be put out of commission in 15 minutes by Russian subs. The cities of Pittsburgh, Birmingham, Buffalo, Cleveland, are all vulnerable to submarine attack, to say nothing of those along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. . . . All this is why the U. S. Navy will start building anti-submarines, in other words, killer subs which can crawl underneath the water. They will be equipped with fantastic, new submarine-to-submarine torpedoes. But they will not be completed for two years. . . . In contrast to Russia's 600 subs, Hitler had only 49 at the start of World War II. He nearly knocked out Allied shipping.

No Management Supervision — Arthur Goldberg, special counsel for the AFL-CIO, has lodged an angry complaint at Secretary of Labor Mitchell for deliberately discriminating against labor in his proposals for new labor laws. The AFL-CIO recommended creating a commissioner of labor and management reports, who would check on both union and company finance—since many companies have sole jurisdiction over welfare funds. But Secretary Mitchell adopted only half of the recommendation; proposed only a commissioner of labor reports, with no supervision of management.

Defense Spending Begins Climbing

By United Press.

After seven months of decline defense spending turned upward in December, rising to a record peacetime annual rate of 40 billion dollars, according to Pentagon officials. From now until June spending is expected to run at an annual rate of 39 billion dollars. Defense Secretary Neil McElroy says spending in the year beginning July 1 will total 40 billion dollars.

As a boy, Sam Houston, hero of the Texas fight for independence, longed for adventure. He ran off to live among the Cherokee Indians. In later life, he often appeared in Indian dress and once resigned a public office because he was criticized for doing so. Even though he had served as a governor of Tennessee, president of the Republic of Texas, and was removed from the Texas governor's chair because he refused to take an oath to support the Confederacy during the war between the states.

HEADLINES TO COME—It has been a long time since the 1934-1940 years, when child actress Shirley Temple was the most publicized youngster in the world and was 24-hour-a-day news. But now she'll make some more headlines as Young Matron Shirley Temple Black, returning to the entertainment world with her own TV show. Here she's shown with her husband, Charles Black and the children, in their Atherton, Calif., home. Asian Flu Epidemic, Biggest Since 1918, But Far Less Of a Killer

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Public Health Service officials said today the great Asian flu epidemic appears to have subsided—for the time being.

Experts are divided on whether a second wave of flu may hit the nation between now and spring. Some think it is likely; others say it is very improbable. Both sides admit that the history of past flu epidemics offers no clear guide to what can be expected.

The first wave of the epidemic which rolled across the nation beginning in September, took a heavier toll than is generally realized.

Surgeon General Leroy H. Burney estimates that about 20 million Americans came down with the disease during the last four months of 1957.

That makes it the biggest flu epidemic, from the viewpoint of total cases, since the terrible 1918 "pandemic."

Asian flu, as predicted, proved to be far less of a killer than the 1918 disease which took an estimated 500,000 American lives.

But the mortality charts at Public Health Service headquarters show that Asian flu was not quite as "mild" as some people thought.

In the 108 major cities which submit weekly vital statistics to PHS headquarters, there were 9,240 deaths from influenza and pneumonia during the last four months. This represents a jump of more than 4,000 deaths over the figure for the comparable period of 1956.

In these same cities, which represent less than one-third of the total U. S. population, the number of deaths from all causes was about 17,500 greater during the Sept. 1-Dec. 28 period than during the same period of 1956.

"A large proportion" of these 17,500 "excess deaths" are attributable to the Asian flu epidemic according to Dr. Carl C. Dauer, Public Health Service influenza control officer.

Dauer said a flu epidemic always causes an upswing in the death rate from heart disease, tuberculosis and other chronic diseases. Victims of these ailments are "pushed over the line" by an attack of flu, and although their deaths are not listed as due to influenza or pneumonia, they are as truly victims of the epidemic as anyone else, he explained.

Dr. William H. Stewart, assistant to the surgeon general, said the impact of Asian flu was "considerably lessened" by the extensive advance preparations, particularly the widespread use of vaccine.

Educator Gerald Smith Receives GOP Blessing as Candidate for Nickell Post

CHICAGO (AP) — Schoolman Gerald W. Smith stepped into big-time politics for the first time today, his 52nd birthday.

Smith was given official Republican blessing as candidate for the state superintendent of public instruction in the April primary. He is superintendent of schools at Elmwood Park.

It will be his first try at an elective office. He will make the race as the choice of Gov. Stratton who looked him over in an interview Dec. 11.

Treasury Ruling On Issuing Bonds Pertains to Banks

The recent United States Treasury regulation forbidding the issuance of savings bonds in the names of persons under guardianship, custodianship, etc., is restrictive only as it pertains to banks and other qualified issuing agents.

George Davenport of the Harrisburg National Bank states bonds will still be issued in the names of persons under guardianship, custodianship, etc., but the issue will be made by a Federal Reserve Bank. Local banks will accept the application for the bonds, then forward them to a Federal Reserve Bank, where the issue will be made.

Banks will continue to issue bonds in the names of persons in their own right.

It has also been announced by the Treasury Department that classes of eligible purchasers of Series E and H bonds have been expanded to include all investors other than commercial banks.

Elks Resume Ladies' Night Dinners Tonight

Elks and their families were reminded today that Ladies' Night dinners have been resumed following the holidays, with dinner being served tonight at 7:00 p. m. in the Rathskeller.

The regular schedule of every other Wednesday night is now back in effect, and local Elks are urged to bring their families and take part in this popular bi-weekly affair.

The Democrats met today to make final decisions on their slate. The Democratic State Central Committee and the Cook County leaders were expected to choose Cook County Sheriff Joseph Lohman as candidate for state treasurer and George T. Wilkins Madison County school superintendent for state school superintendent.

Cook County Republican leaders endorsed Smith Tuesday. They also gave their backing to Rep. Louis E. Beckman, Kankakee state treasurer. Stratton also looks with favor on Beckman.

Smith, a Knox College graduate, said that he agrees with Stratton's position opposing federal aid to education as a threat to local control over the schools. "I am not a very strong fed-

Nixon Hits Pessimistic Talk

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon said today that the United States is "militarily stronger today than any potential aggressor."

Nixon branded as "unmitigated nonsense" any pessimistic talk to the contrary.

The vice president made these statements in a speech prepared for delivery before the 35th annual meeting of the American Football Coaches Assn.

The lunch also featured the coach of the year award to Wayne Woodrow (Woody) Hayes of Ohio State.

He directed his comment at what he called "a lot of pessimistic talk . . . to the effect that the United States is weaker than the Soviet Union, that our Strategic Air Force is obsolete because of the successful Soviet satellite launchings, that our economy is inevitably headed for depression, and that our scientists are inferior."

"Such statements," he said, "can only be described as unmitigated nonsense."

"The United States is militarily stronger today than any potential aggressor. Our economy is basically strong and produces three times as much as does that of the Soviet Union."

eral aid man," Smith said in an interview. "I am strong for state aid."

Smith said that the governor expressed only one demand in talking with him. That was, Smith said, that the party's candidate to succeed Vernon Nickell be first of all an educator.

Nickell, who has been a state school superintendent since 1943, decided against running for the office a fifth time on the advice of his doctors. Nickell is 66.

Smith disclosed that he himself imposed three conditions before committing himself to run for the office. He said that he agreed to run if the Cook County Central Committee gave its endorsement, which it did Tuesday.

A second condition stemmed from the fact that "I have no money of my own to make a campaign," he said. He said the party assured him that it would provide adequate funds.

The third condition was consent of the two boards of education to release him from his joint $16,500 post as superintendent of both the elementary and senior high school system at Elmwood Park, a suburb immediately west of Chicago.

Smith was a principal of the senior high school and director of the Community College at Moline from 1947 to 1953 when he went to Elmwood Park.

NATO Delays Decision

PARIS (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council met today to seek a common approach to Russia's latest call for a new summit conference. But the recent British surprise plan for a non-aggression pact with Moscow forced the Council to delay its decision.

The 15 permanent NATO ambassadors discussed East-West problems for 90 minutes of a 3½-hour meeting this morning.

They decided to meet again Friday afternoon for a further discussion on the proposal for another summit parley made in December by Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin.

The United States is known not to be in favor of such a parley at this time. But its jittery European Allies at least want to explore Soviet intentions.

Dredge Overturns In Galveston Bay

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Rescue workers searched today for bodies in the hulk of the capsized million dollar dredge, the H. A. Sawyer.

The huge dredge, almost brand new, turned over in Galveston Bay Tuesday with a reported 27 crewmen aboard. Three men were known dead. An undetermined number were rescued.

The dredge went over its port side in 35 feet of water. Part of its hull remained above water and survivors, at least two of whom were seriously injured, clung to it until they were rescued by workers from another dredge.

Farm States Approve Plan to Junk Soil Bank

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm state lawmakers today generally approved the Eisenhower administration's plan to junk its controversial program of paying farmers to let cropland lie idle.

Some, like Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), said the program "should never have been born" in the first place. This was the view of most House members who originally opposed the plan but were outvoted by the Senate.

Others, like Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), indicated a "wait and see" attitude toward what the administration will offer in its place before fully endorsing the move.

Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson announced Tuesday the administration will ask Congress to end its program of paying farmers to let land out of production with the end of the 1958 crop year.

This is the so-called "acreage reserve" section of the soil bank program under which farmers are paid to take land out of production and simply let it lie idle, the goal being to cut surplus production. The other section of the soil bank is the conservation reserve program under which farmers must put idle land into grass or trees or other conservation uses in exchange for federal payments.

Benson said in place of the idle land plan the administration will seek approval of a stepped-up conservation reserve program. He said the new recommendations will be included in the President's budget message to Congress Jan. 13 and a special farm message also will be sent to Congress around Jan. 15 or 16.

A spokesman for the American Farm Bureau Federation said the federation "would agree pretty well" with Benson's action in seeking to drop the acreage reserve.

The spokesman added, however, the Farm Bureau's attitude on expanding the conservation reserve will depend on the possibility of coordinating it with other federal soil conservation programs.

At Least 20 Killed in Cold Weather Mishaps

By United Press

The bitterest storm of the season has blasted the mid-Atlantic and northeastern states with a traffic-snarling snowstorm up to a foot deep, severe winds and temperatures of cold wave proportions.

At least 20 persons died in accidents blamed on the weather across the nation in the past 24 hours, according to a United Press count. Among the victims were four persons who suffered apparent heart attack while shoveling walks or trying to free their stalled cars in the New York area.

The eastern storm, which began Tuesday afternoon, buried coastal sections as far south as Virginia with nearly a foot of snow and dumped 4 to 12 inches of snow across northern New England.

The storm was expected to diminish today, with snow flurries ending in most sections by nightfall.

Strong winds, reaching gusts of 46 miles an hour at Boston, piled the snow into road-blocking drifts, and an onrushing wave of cold air drove readings down near the zero mark in the West Virginia mountains.

Driving was hazardous throughout the area, slowing land and air traffic and forcing some schools to close. Other weather victims included four persons killed in traffic in New England, two in New York state, and one in Pennsylvania; six persons five of them children, killed in fires in a midwest town cold belt and one killed when an Army stratotanker crashed during a rainstorm in Florida. Ice was blamed for deaths in Iowa and Wisconsin.

Witness Tells Of Delivering Cash to Epping

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The former assistant cashier of the Southmoor bank in Chicago, today recounted how he delivered $85,000 in cash to Edward A. Epping in exchange for four state checks.

Ralph K. Schlitz, another major witness in the trial of Epping, ex-Auditor, Orville E. Hodge's former office manager, testified that he met Hodge and Epping at Meigs Field in Chicago, and accompanied Epping to the First National Bank at Chicago to get the money.

Schlitz said he was instructed to take a bank draft to the First National by Edward A. Hintz, then president of the Southmoor bank, to obtain the funds, which he gave to Epping. Epping delivered four allegedly fraudulent state warrants or checks in exchange for the cash, he said.

Schlitz' testimony followed that of Hintz, who was brought here from Joliet prison to testify in the trial of Epping. Hintz, who was sent to prison himself for his part in the Hodge scandal, concluded his testimony earlier today.

Defense attorney Robert H. Rice, in lengthy cross-examination, repeatedly attempted to show that Hintz' records of the brown envelope account were faulty, and his testimony should not be taken at face value.

Thinking It Over

By Robt. L. Diefenbacher, D. D. (Written for NEA Service)

A speck of dust on one's glasses appears like a smudge before his eyes. The tiny spot cuts off full vision to the extent that the clean area becomes insignificant. We make mountains out of mole hills when we concentrate on the little bumps. Small concerns become big worries as we build up their importance to our minds.

We need to eliminate our little worries by eliminating both their causes and their significance. We need to look at everything in perspective to evaluate the importance of the detail in relation to other details. When one sees things as they really are, we can find them into their proper location in the total picture.

God helps us gain perspective so that the worries over insignificant mundane matters melt into the background. When we get rid of our worries we can accept our important spiritual responsibilities. We can see the opportunities for serving God which otherwise we could not even recognize.

Asian Flu, Higher Multipliers Halt Shortages in School Funds

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Asian flu and higher tax multipliers have headed off a threatened deficit in the state school aid fund, the Illinois Budgetary Commission was told Tuesday.

The School Problems Commission estimated during the legislative session that the 227-million dollar school aid fund would be about 11 million dollars short of the amount needed for the budget period ending June 30, 1959.

Democrats charged Gov. Stratton was "short changing" the schools.

But Tuesday Samuel Bishop of the office of superintendent of public instruction told the Budgetary Commission at a meeting here that it appeared there now would be a surplus of about $2,709,000 in the school aid appropriation.

State Rep. Charles W. Clabaugh (R-Champaign), chief of the School Problems Commission, agreed with this estimate, but said attacks of Asian flu and the higher tax multipliers being assigned by the Revenue Department this year had

U. S. Newsprint Industry May Top Nine Million Tons

NEW YORK 15 — The North American newsprint industry pushed its rated capacity past the 8 million ton mark for the first time in 1957, expects to see it top 9 million tons this year and looks for 10 million tons by 1959, the Newsprint Information Committee said Tuesday night.

The 10-million-ton figure represents nearly 40 per cent more newsprint than was used in the U. S. and Canada in 1955, a year of short supply.

The committee said that currently newsprint needs are being filled without recourse to 700,000 tons of manufacturing capacity, adding that in 1958 unused capacity probably will top the one million ton mark.

Actual absorption of newsprint by U. S. publishers in 1957 was just about the same as in 1956, the committee reported.

HAND-PICKED for MURDER

XXVII
The Bay Shore Inn was on a wide curve overlooking the dark waters of Sandusky Bay. The waitress, a pretty, young, dark-haired girl in a white blouse and a flaring red peasant skirt, told me they served only wine.

At 20 minutes past nine, I knew that Sandra wasn't coming. Maybe I'd known it all along. I paid my bill and left.

I cut back across the island and at last reached the road leading down to Mariana Beach. There were lights in the pink stucco hotel, and laughter came from night bathers on the beach. I parked off the road in the shadow of the woods and walked down the path behind the cottages. The moon was high and bright and even in the woods I could see my way fairly clearly. The wind had freshened and grown cooler and all around me the pines moaned gently.

I reached the end of the path and saw the Osterman cottage across the grassy back yard. There were lights inside and the back door was open. Through the screen I saw the kitchen and the doorway to the living room. I crossed the yard and knocked softly on the frame of the screen. The only response I got was the angry buzzing and stirring of disturbed bugs. From down the beach I could still hear the faint shouts of the frolicking bathers. I knocked again, louder. Nothing.

The screen door was not hooked or locked. I pushed it open, stepped inside and stood still. "Hey!" I called. "Anybody home?"

The place was silent. I smelled the faint mustiness of all lake cottages. I gazed around the kitchen, saw again the gas range, cupboard, pine table and chairs, the old-fashioned ice chest. I moved into the living room. Three doors faced me. I opened them all, one by one. Bedrooms, the beds neatly made and covered with gay print spreads. When I'd closed the third door I turned and gazed at the living room. There were ashes in a stone fireplace, newspapers on a low table beside a divan, a wooden pipe rack on the mantel, three canvas deck chairs, a phone on a stand near the front door, a small stack of leather-bound notebooks in a corner beside a microscope and a rack of empty test tubes.

I stepped out to the front porch. It was dark there, except for a fan-tailed pattern of saffron light from the floor lamp inside. In the moonlight, across maybe 50 yards of beach, I could see the lake, the foaming glint of the rolling combers and the pale scudding clouds beyond. On the porch at my right were the chairs and the card table bearing the typewriter, the keys glinting dully in the suffused light. I turned my head, saw the two low deck chairs there. Someone was in the farthest chair.

"Hello," I said softly. There was no answer; the only sound was the washing of the waves on the sand.

I moved along the porch to the chair. I stopped, peering down. There was plenty of light for me to see all I wanted to see. In the moonlight it seemed she was staring at me. Her eyes held a moonlight glint, but they didn't move. Her mouth was open, just a little, the lips parted in a pleasant smile. I leaned close, saw a square wooden handle above an inch of bright steel, slimmer than a pencil, protruding from just below her left breast. The handle was at a downward angle and the point was in deep enough to have missed the ribs. A thin dark ribbon of blood curled down over her stomach and separated into thinner ribbons on the inside of her left thigh, like a map of a river and its tributaries.

The ice pick was buried deep, deeper than the one found in Ambrose Lott. Not that it mattered now. Sandra may have felt the first savage thrust, the first inch of steel, but after that she had been beyond caring.

From somewhere close by there came a flat, sharp sound, like a shot, and I straightened and whirled. Then I realized that the back screen door had slammed. Through the windows of the cottage I saw Wayne Howell crossing the living room. "Sandra," he called, "where are you?"

I stepped quickly to the doorway to head him off. He stopped abruptly, and stepped back, his glasses glittering in the light. When the first shock of surprise left him, he blurted, "What—what're you doing here?"

"I had an appointment," I said, "but somebody beat me to it."

He frowned and tried to peer past me to the darkened porch. "Where's Sandra? Out there?"

"Yes, she's out there."

He made a move to pass me, but I blocked the doorway. "Wait a minute, Wayne. I had bad news for you earlier today, but this is really rough. Sandra is—dead."

He didn't get it at first, or seemed not to get it. He stared at me, and I almost winced at the expression in his eyes. Then his mouth began to quiver, and suddenly he lunged forward, his arm extended to push me aside. I stepped out of his way and let him go. Then I leaned against the wall beside the door and lit a cigarette.

I waited. There was nothing but silence from the porch.

Presently I heard his slow re-turning steps. He came through the doorway, stumbled to a chair, and leaned forward with his hands covering his face. I smoked and watched him. It was very quiet, except for the soft sound of the waves on the sands and the bugs buzzing against the porch screen.

Plan Oil Test Near Bald Knob

ALTO PASS, Ill. — An oil exploration is scheduled near Bald Knob Mountain in the Illinois Ozarks where a group hopes to erect a huge lighted cross as a symbol of religious unity.

Warren Hastings, Mounds, president of the Bald Knob Christian Foundation, said an oil drilling lease has been granted to a group of Mount Vernon area men. Terms specify that a well must be drilled within six months.

The lease includes 187 acres but there can be no drilling on the summit of Bald Knob near Alto Pass where the cross is scheduled to be erected.

"An oil strike would go a long way toward helping us build the cross," Hastings said. He says a pig-raising program originated by Wayman Presley to help build the cross is "coming along nicely." Under the program, farmers in several sections of Illinois are volunteering to raise the pigs without charge to the foundation.

Hastings said the foundation hopes to begin the first stage construction of the 200 to 250-foot cross after Easter.

Ridgway, Galatia, Cave-in-Rock Win Greater Egyptian Loop Tilts

Ridgway and Galatia, leader and runnerup teams in the Greater Egyptian conference, strengthened their positions and Cave-in-Rock went over the 500 mark in loop play Tuesday night.

Ridgway won from Shawneetown, 65-48. Galatia beat Equality 82-74, and Cave-in-Rock took a 58-51 decision from Pope County.

Ridgway, 7-0 in the conference and 12-0 overall for the season, led all the way, getting off to an 11-7 quarter lead and increasing the advantage to 26-19 at the half. Shawneetown held a 16-15 third quarter advantage, then Ridgway roared back to a big 24-13 final frame to ice the verdict.

Roger Suttner paced Ridgway's attack with 28 points and Clifford and Sanders also got in double figures with 17 and 11 respectively. Pierson and Jim Brazier with 15 and 14 points were tops for Shawneetown.

Galatia-Equality Tilt
Second place Galatia took visiting Equality 82-74 in a game that saw the scoring tide change time after time, but Galatia held the lead practically all the way.

Midway in the opening quarter Galatia opened up a 17-6 lead, then Harlin Barnett went on a 7-point spree and closed the gap to 17-13 at the end of the frame. At one point in the second period Galatia was on top 26-18, but had to scrap to stay ahead 33-32 at halftime.

Equality finally took the lead 35-33 early in the third frame and led again, 37-36, with 4:20 showing on the clock. With Boyett showing the way Galatia spurred to a 44-37 advantage in a short time and was far in front, 57-43 as the final frame started.

In a free-wheeling fourth quarter, with a total of 56 points scored, including 31 by Equality, interest was at a high pitch, but the winners always had enough to stave off any serious threat by the visitors.

Unbeaten Carrier Mills ran its season record to 11-0 Tuesday night with 78-66 victory over Norris City. The game was played at Carrier Mills.

Getting away to a fine start Carrier Mills held a scoring advantage through the first three quarters and was in front 18 points—60-42—when the final period started. The visiting Norris City five cut six points off the margin in the fourth period.

An unusually well balanced attack featured the Carrier Mills scoring—Vern Rollins was tops with 17 points, and three mates Jack Keene, Junior Manier and Bill Smith were just a basket back with 15 points each.

Norris City's Jim Greathouse was the game's top scorer with 22.

Hawks Defeat Knicks, 114-112

By United Press
Bob Pettit of St. Louis is finding it hard to score with a cast on his broken left hand, but the Hawks are rolling merely along the victory trail.

The six-nine Pettit, whose best shot is a one-handed jump, is experiencing difficulty maneuvering the ball with the cast extended over the palm of his left hand. He managed only 11 points against the New York Knickerbockers Tuesday night, but his mates accounted for enough points to beat the New Yorkers, 114-112, in the nightcap of a National Basketball Assn. doubleheader at Madison Square Garden.

The victory was the Hawks 25th in 36 games. played thus far and kept them nine full games ahead of the second-place Cincinnati Royals in the Western Division race. The Royals defeated the slumping Minneapolis Lakers, 114-99, in the opener of the twin bill before a crowd of 8,239.

Red Skelton 'Out of Danger'

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UP)—Comedian Red Skelton was reported "out of danger" today at St. John's Hospital where he was admitted a week ago near death from an acute "cardiac-asthmatic" attack.

Dr. Garth K. Graham, his physician, said the red-haired funny-man would be hospitalized a few days more for treatment of a "moderate pneumonitis" in the right lung. Skelton was stricken a week ago at his Bel-Air home. His 10-year-old daughter, Valentina, found him gasping for breath on the floor and he was rushed to the hospital.

Peace In Harrisburg

We may have peace in Harrisburg—in our day!

There is no excuse for elected city officials getting along like a bunch of kids fighting at the dinner table.

Harrisburg is a grownup town and Harrisburg does all right, too. We have a good town—good to live in—worth scrapping for.

It takes courage to stand up and say this, but I am the one who has been called upon in the past to undertake some of the difficult tasks for Harrisburg, and, I say here and now, that we, as a city, are in a messy situation, and I am willing to do my part to straighten it out.

For years, our city government has been the battleground for petty local wars—fought over personal jealousy and envy.

That's not what we're paying for! We are entitled to sensible, sane, cautious procedure in the City Hall.

I have gone to Springfield on several occasions and obtained assistance and information needed locally that no one else would ask for.

I can prove by the words of lots of people that I have obtained jobs for many Harrisburg men.

If you want someone with courage to face the situation and bring back again good work and cooperation, vote for me!

If you should elect me councilman, I'll guarantee that you get the straight of everything that comes up in the city hall.

Deserted Building on Banks Eldorado Reservoir Site of CCC Camp in 1930s

ABOUT AS BLEAK AND RUNDOWN as the time in our nation's history when it was built is this deserted building near the Eldorado reservoir. It once was headquarters for a Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) company, known as Camp Saline. (Daily Register Staff Photo)

By Bill Melton
Register Staff Writer

Just south of the entrance to Karel Park on the banks of the Eldorado reservoir is a roadway through a 10-acre wooded area that nearly a quarter of a century ago was the site of Camp Saline, one of many Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) camps located throughout the United States.

And one of the buildings of Camp Saline still stands, although it now is in a bad state of repair. The tar-paper siding is peeling, window glass disappeared long ago, doors are sagging on broken hinges and the walls and floors are no longer safe.

This building housed the administrative offices for the camp and was the hub of activities for the approximately 200 persons working out of the camp.

The CCC was one of several alphabetical agencies established in 1933 during the Great Depression.

A lot has happened since those years including two wars and the United States has experienced its greatest period of economic development, with unemployment practically unheard of during some of the years.

But during the 1930s, particularly the early '30s, the economy of the nation was about as low as at any time in the country's history and unemployment was on every side.

There are many that will argue over the merit, or lack thereof, of the alphabetical agencies—including the CCC, WPA, PWA, and others—but there is one certain point that can't be argued. Men were put to work. And that was of prime importance.

To me the CCC was probably the least controversial of all the agencies. But maybe that is because I was directly connected with the program and saw many of the benefits.

Camp Saline moved to the property near the Eldorado Reservoir in June of 1933 and remained for something more than a year, moving away in August of 1934. The camp was re-located at Galena, and later at another location in the state.

In talking with Arch Woods of Eldorado, who was one of the foremen at Camp Saline, he stated that at one time there "were buildings all over the place—mess hall, barracks, headquarters, show houses and others." And, Mr. Woods stated, "I remember helping build a great big root cellar where vegetables and other food stuffs were stored."

When the camp moved all the buildings were torn down, except the one responsible for this article.

Bruce Burnett, son of the late R. C. Burnett who owned the land where the camp was located, told me recently he didn't remember the details, but did remember that for some unusual courtesy his father showed the camp the one building was left on the site.

For several years the Burnett family kept the building repaired and used it for picnics and outings, but it hasn't been touched in a long time and is in bad condition now.

Men enlisting in the program were referred to in news stories of the day as members of the "forest army" and originally Illinois was given a quota of 15,000, with 74 men established as the quota for Saline county. Registration began late in April three meals each day, meaning that for about 38 cents a man was being furnished "three squares" daily.

There were other camps in this area and among other things accomplished was the opening of the beautiful scenery of southern Illinois to everyone by constructing roads through the Ozark country. Road building was only one of several lasting accomplishments.

Many, many of my generation (46 years old) and older persons remember the CCC camps with fond memories. Employment was made available and although the pay ($30.00 per month) was not much by present day standards it would buy a lot in 1933.

In fact, according to the regulations, $25 of each $30 monthly check had to be allotted to the folks at home. And it wasn't left to chance—the $25 was sent home and the man received just $5 across the pay table.

But a guy with $5, plus clothing and food, wasn't bad off.

My connection with the CCC was more fortunate, financially speaking. I had completed CMTC (that's another story) plus a series of examinations and received a commission as a 2nd Lieutenant, U. S. Army Reserve, in Oct. 1932 and in 1935 was called to duty with the CCC as a Reserve Officer. For that duty I received $125 base pay, plus $18 for food. From that I paid all my expenses and bought Army uniform, including boots and spurs. But $143 a month, why that was like having the "world with a fence around it."

My duty was in Wisconsin. I also first reported to Jefferson Barracks and was assigned to headquarters at Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis., then had duty at three camps in the Eau Claire (west central) area of Wisconsin. Most of the work out of our camps were tree planting and building concrete dams for soil erosion control. The people in the area were high in their praise of the work and when a camp moved there were many expressions of regret by the natives.

Those were not what I would exactly call "good" old days. In fact they were bad days, economically speaking—days that I sincerely hope the nation never relives. But the alphabetical agencies, as imperfect as they might have been, gave men hope—proved to be agencies to conserve humans as well as natural resources, so they could n't have been too bad.

Those were the days when the tar-paper building on a lane leading through the wooded area toward the Eldorado Reservoir was built.

To the younger generation it is just an old, dilapidated building. To others it is a link with a past era.
